LAUGH AT CITY SUPERVISORS' JEST. OVER COUNCIL'S "CLEAN-UP" OFFER—MORE CLAIMS FILED.

Minor business has been transacted at the county board since the opening session of the regular fall meeting Tuesday afternoon. The county money was allocated to a pool of six banks with the interest rate at 3.57 percent, a reduction of that granted by the same banks last year.

Roads, bridges and claims occupied the attention of the board Tuesday morning up to noon when an adjournment was taken for the annual dinner at the Rock county farm.

A petition was filed for a road in Beloit and Newark townships starting from Paddock's corner and running west.

There were expressions of humor and even sarcasm apparent when a communication from the Janesville city council was read signed by City Clerk E. J. Sartell offering the cooperation of the city of Janesville in closing the South Janesville resorts.

Four claims filed.

Injunction proceedings have been upheld by the circuit court against both places under the padlock law.

"The city of Janesville might well concern itself with several places within the city limits," it was determined to enforce the law," was the private expression of several supervisors.

Four claims were filed against the county, mainly on road accidents.

"This shows the result of the unlimited issue of money and marks," declared Supervisor Merriam.

Considerable enjoyment having been had over Dr. Merriam's stories of money deflation abroad, a ruling vote of thanks for his offer to make all supervisors millionaires was given unanimously on motion of Attorney E. D. Morrow. The resolution will not, however, appear on the record of proceedings.

State Has Mass of Laws, Double Those of Quarter Century Ago, Says Vinje

Marking the 25th year of existence, the Twilight club of Janesville opened the season with a dinner in the Janesville Y. M. C. A. Tuesday night, hearing Judge Ald J. Vinje, chief justice of the Wisconsin supreme court. Justice Vinje read an able paper on "Present Day Problems in Jurisprudence."

During the discussion following the address, there were pertinent expressions from Janesville men on the judicial and political situation. The tendency of popular thought to regulate or interfere with the power of the court was objected to by many.

Justice Vinje traced the trend of changes in law and courts from the time when people fought for and obtained personal liberty and individual rights as opposed to the rights of the sovereign. In early days the rights of citizens were carefully surrounded and the modern tendency is for the state or government to invade these rights or interfere with the freedom of the individual to act as he chooses, he said.

Changes in Laws.

The state has deemed it advisable to protect society against conditions that threaten safety, health and thrift.

Lions to Publish Paper for Blind

The Janesville Lions club has investigated a magazine for the blind published by the Ohio Lions club and the Janesville club has initiated a movement to get all the Lions clubs in Wisconsin to supply this magazine to the blind in Wisconsin free of charge. The plan is to divide the cost pro-rata among the clubs according to membership. The Ohio Lions have perfected a unique magazine for the use of the blind and send it free to all the blind in Ohio but at the cost is heavy they cannot afford it outside the state. However, they are glad to furnish the magazine to any Lions club or other organization at cost and as the larger the number the smaller the cost it is believed that if Wisconsin Lions clubs take up the plan the cost of the work will be reduced. While the Janesville Lions feel that their first duty is to complete the fund necessary to erect the memorial tablets still it will take some time to organize the Wisconsin Lions clubs in favor of the magazine so the two projects will not conflict.

IN MANY HOMES a trip from one room to the next room is like passing from the Torrid to the Arctic zone.

The wind determines which side of the house is hot and which cold. And the family spends the winter huddling over a register or around a stove.

It's all so unnecessary.

For ARCOLA, connected with an American Radiator in each room, can warm your home as evenly and perfectly as our larger heating plants warm mansions and larger buildings all over the world. And radiator warmth with ARCOLA is not only best but cheapest. Thousands of owners testify that ARCOLA is rapidly paying back its cost in the fuel it saves.

Life is short; don't shiver through it. Make up your mind that radiator warmth with ARCOLA is the best warmth and the cheapest in the end. For ARCOLA pays for itself in the fuel it saves.

DON'T STARVE THE "KIDDIES"

Stuffing them with indigestible foods may please their appetites, but it does not build perfect, robust bodies. There is more real muscle-building, bone-making material in Shredded Wheat Biscuit than in potatoes, eggs or mushy porridges—and the crispness of the shreds of baked wheat encourages thorough chewing which means good digestion and sound teeth. Contains just enough bran to prevent that bane of all childhood—constipation. It is an all-day food, delicious for breakfast, for lunch, for dinner.

IF SKIN BREAKS OUT AND ITCHES APPLY SULPHUR

Just the moment you apply Mentho-Sulphur to an itching, burning or broken out skin, the itching stops and healing begins, says a noted skin specialist. This sulphur preparation, made into a pleasant cold cream, gives such a quick relief, even to fiery eczema, that nothing has ever been found to take its place.

Because of its germ-destroying properties it quickly subdues the itching, cools the irritation and heals the eczema right up, leaving a clear, smooth skin in place of ugly eruptions, rash, pimples or roughness.

You do not have to wait for improvement. It quickly shows. You can get a little jar of Rowles Mentho-Sulphur at any drug store.

DELAVER ROAD TO BE CHANGED

Route 20, When Paved, Will Go Out Racine Street, State Says.

Route 20 east of Janesville now running on South Main street and Eastern avenue will go out Racine street, according to the state highway department, which is constructing a new road, according to an announcement received this week by County Highway Commissioner Charles E. Moore.

The present route will prevail until the new road is ready to start construction east of Janesville toward Delavan. This is expected to be in 1925, unless it is started late next year.

Eliminating Several Crossings. Elimination of railroad crossings again seems to have given the state committee in selecting the new route the highway east from Janesville shall follow. Two crossings on the main line of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railroad just east of the Rock County Sugar company factory are cut out through the new route, which will join the present route four miles east of Janesville on the east side of the hill, which is east of the second main line crossing. The series of spur tracks near Spring Creek creek also will be eliminated.

Probable Route. The road will probably go out Main street, turn up the long but gradual Racine street hill and then east parallel to the present highway 20 for three miles and then past the Hughes farm back a mile south to the highway as now laid out.

ANCIENT MINERALS FOUND IN ARCTIC

Philadelphia—Specimens of minerals claimed to have been extracted from strata of earth in Greenland, Antarctica, the Garden of Eden by Dr. Samuel G. Gordon of the Academy of Natural Science here.

The minerals were discovered by Dr. Samuel G. Gordon of the academy, who has just returned from an expedition to the Arctic country.

Whether the minerals, which were found in large quantities, could be made of any commercial value was problematical, Dr. Gordon said. One reason was the inaccessibility of Greenland, he declared.

NATION DEPLORABLE FROM ANKLES DOWN, DECLARES PEDAGOG

Chicago.—From the neck up there is no cause for worry but from the knees down the nation is to be pitied, according to Prof. F. G. Krantz, physical culture director at Northwestern university who is conducting a campaign to save the nation from the physical effects of the "sit down" strike.

"Sit down" he said to the co-eds. "Stand up! Walk! No, not that way! Here, watch me!"

And the professor, who says almost everybody is out of step but himself, put one foot ahead of the other in the manner of a penguin.

"You want to be like the penguin? Waddle a little. Put the weight on the outside of the soles. Lissard your French heels. Get shoes you can wiggle your toes in."

The trouble with America, in this case, is that it has been so busy wiggling its hips it has forgotten how to wiggle its toes.

Professor Krantz decided after the first lesson that the co-eds might learn to walk if they kept at it long enough.

100 WAYS To Make Money

By BILLY WINNER

If I Enjoyed Shopping—I'D SHOP FOR OTHERS.

Women living in the smaller cities of this state I know would be glad to learn of my service. There are women in Janesville, too, who do not come downtown very often, and there are others who do not like to shop.

I know that if I enjoyed shopping, I'd want to help those who didn't. They'd be glad to have me do their shopping.

So this is what I'd do—I'd run a Want Ad in the Janesville Gazette offering my services as a shopper for other people. I'd charge a small per cent as my commission. Now I would become so skillful as a buyer that I would save for my customers more than enough money to pay my commissions. And when that happened I would run another Want Ad in the Janesville Gazette and get a lot more customers.

LA VERNE NELSON DEAD FROM GAS

Painter, Despondent Over Poor Health, Takes Own Life.

La Verne Nelson, 37, a painter by trade, took his own life by turning on the gas in a room at the home of his brother-in-law, George La Bar, 826 Prospect avenue, sometime Tuesday afternoon. Mr. Nelson had been despondent for some time on account of poor health but had said nothing to relatives that would make them think he would end it all.

About 1 p. m. Tuesday, he met Mr. La Bar and asked him for the key to his house. Upon returning home at night, Mr. La Bar found the house locked and upon forcing an entrance he detected the odor of gas. He called Harry Van Gilder, and they investigated further, finding Mr. Nelson dead in an upstairs bed room.

Coroner Lynn A. Whaley and a doctor were summoned and it was found he had been dead several hours. He had placed clothing at the bottom of the doors in the room. Mr. Nelson lived with his wife and two sisters, Mrs. Harry Van Gilder, this city, and Mrs. Miles Dunn, Ruid, Ind. and two brothers, Bert, Chicago, and Fred, Chicago. The funeral will be held at 2 p. m. Thursday from the Whaley funeral parlors. Burial will be in Oak Hill cemetery.

COUNTY TO GET

leged to have been caused by improper road construction or protection.

Emil Dix, Milton Junction is seeking to recover $27,500 for damages to his automobile in a collision with a truck on Highway 27 near Edgerton.

Propose Grave Markers

Post mortem claims reported by Supervisor C. S. Boynton were allowed.

The sum of $500 was turned over to the agricultural fund for the office of the county agent.

The sum of $150 was considered for obtaining markers for the graves of World War veterans. It was reported that a number of graves would be made to take care of buying these grave markers.

Robert Moore was re-appointed trustee of the Rock county farm for the next year.

The sum of $27,500 was ordered transferred from the emergency fund to the credit of the county farm for the building work authorized by the board at the previous session.

Money to Assessor.

The board closed its morning session passing a resolution to raise the sum of $2500 for the general fund to the expense fund of the assessor of incomes and referring a bill from the poor commissioner at Beloit, to the district officer.

Supervisors W. S. Perlick, Simon Smith, B. D. Treadway, W. D. Morgan, and W. J. Lathers voted against the transfer of the $2500 for the district officer's expenditures of Frank A. Taylor, assessor of incomes.

Commissioner Benson presented a case of a child in Beloit whose condition necessitated hospital care, which was ordered by the city nurse on the promise of the father to pay. He did not and there is a bill of $81 for a nurse and $54.50 hospital care.

The district officer will give his opinion as to whether the bill should be paid.

Opening Session Tuesday

Spokane for dinner when the tax road and other paramount issues will come up, the Rock county board of supervisors met Tuesday afternoon, transacting routine business until 4:30 p. m.

The most important business was the award of the county money to a pool of six banks, the same as last year, for the interest of 2.57 percent.

The following banks were made county depositories: The Rock County National Bank, Janesville; Postville State Bank; Citizens Bank of Clinton; Farmers and Merchants Bank of Oxfordville; Farmers Bank of Milton Junction, each subscribing to 16 percent of the county's total; and the Bank of Evansville taking 20 percent.

Only two other banks, Evansville institutions, submitted bids and offered three percent interest.

The county money will be awarded to the six banks on the motion of the supervisors as soon as the proper bonds are approved.

The Pool System

This is the second consecutive year a series of banks have had the county money, and apparently the system is successful, and while the interest paid is satisfactory to the board, the plan has the advantage of distributing the money around the county.

There was an issue on the granting of liability insurance to be investigated by District Attorney S. G. Dunbar, meeting information on the amount needed to carry the insurance in the budget was asked by Supervisor Simon Smith, Beloit.

Several supervisors suggested that full insurance be carried for employees of the county highway department, but that the appointed employees of the county other than this be carried by the county or voluntarily. Whether this can be done is subject to approval of the state commission. The matter was referred to committees six, seven and the district attorney.

High costs of prohibition is the reason advanced for a raise in the allowance for expenses of the office of the district attorney. A resolution was passed by the board to pay $70 a month in the place of $30. Supervisors declared that prohibition cases now required so much time and attention of the district attorney that the raise was just. It was granted without a negative vote. It being reported more than 1,000 cases will be the year's record.

A committee of M. P. Richardson, L. A. Markham and J. A. Paul was named by Chairman Martin Paulson, Evansville, to make up the estimate for the budget on salaries to be paid in 1924 for appointive officers and employees of the county and the salaries for the elected officers in 1925. The appointive officers' salary will take effect in January.

A claim for $1,000 water damages against the county was filed by J. S. Marsden, farmer. He claimed that in building the Evansville highway, ditch was cut, directed the diverted water onto his property, causing heavy damages.

A bill for $600 was filed with the board by David A. Richardson, connected with the Children's Home society, a corporation for the care of dependent children. Four Janesville children have been put in homes by Richardson and he is seeking to collect $600 for their care, even though they may be adopted. The bill was referred to a committee.

When the board convened, there were 40 present and six absent. The adjournment came at 2:30 p. m.

Action Taken to Prevent Further Damage to Trees

Rock county's trees had an able champion in the county board of supervisors during the meeting Tuesday.

Official notice and action was taken to protect the trees of the county along public highways and property from destruction, especially in the hands of the over-head wire men.

The motion for the protection of the trees was fostered by E. D. McGowan, Janesville.

This violation of the law in the destruction of our beautiful trees by negligent linemen, who have no respect for beauty or property, should be prosecuted. Supervisor McGowan declared, "These linemen have gone through Rock county with a fearful destruction of shade trees that cannot be replaced. Land owners should know their rights in the matter. The companies can be prosecuted both in criminal and civil action."

"Of what use is it for the county or any organization to plant memorial trees and have these linemen go through topping off trees, impairing their growth?" demanded the Janesville supervisor.

"I'll second that motion," declared Supervisor J. W. Lathers, Beloit, adding, "I have watched them not only damage the trees, but they are killing or maiming young trees. If it keeps up we will not have any trees."

All township supervisors were advised to acquaint their boards of the rights of trees during the coming town meetings.

Cooperation in Marketing in the Supreme Court

Decision by the Wisconsin supreme court upholding the Northern Wisconsin Cooperative Tobacco Pool is an outstanding victory for the farmer and producer. Holding that the pool is not a monopoly and that the farmer has a right to organize and stay organized to market his product will have a far reaching effect on the agricultural marketing situation of Wisconsin, not confined to tobacco alone. No one denies the farmer the right to grow products; now his right to market that crop by joining under a contract with others, has been sustained.

"The defendant's plan of campaign was well calculated to ruin the plaintiff and bring about the dissolution, thereby relieving the defendants from undesirable competition," reads the decision. That is the exact situation.

The tobacco pool has made progress. The great majority of Wisconsin leaf growers frankly admit the pool has saved the price for tobacco. Even non-pool members, though they elect to remain outside and sell as they please, recognize the effect of the pool on the price of their own crops. The weakness ever present with most farm cooperative efforts is how to give the "man inside" a material advantage over the "man outside."

No agricultural cooperative enterprise can safely guarantee the grower a cost of production plus a profit—which the farmer is clearly entitled to but does not obtain in many instances. The pool however does go a long way in getting the farmer the maximum for the product, considering existing market conditions on a yearly basis. It is interesting to note the speed with which agricultural cooperative marketing has come to the front. It is put forward by both state and national governments as one of the means by which agriculture can be restored to its deserved place in business. There never will be a time when production can be regulated but there can be a system employed so that the production is fed to the market as consumption demands.

The tobacco pool decision means that the growers and their officers may proceed with their marketing plans backed by a legal guarantee that buyers cannot interfere with the contracts, with four more years to run. The farmer through his pool agents will have something to say about the price at which his tobacco will be sold. The establishing of the validity of the pool, it is hoped, will mean the end of "five cent straight" tobacco in Wisconsin.

Even if the Kaiser gets back to Germany he will find that while he may make his mark it will be worthless.

The Unfortunate Mr. Wilson.

Only a feeling of pity can be the reaction of the public after reading what former President Woodrow Wilson has to offer on the policy of the United States since the war. "Ignoble and cowardly," he said in his address on Armistice day. The former president has been a recluse so long and has had so much opportunity to be sorry for himself, that he speaks in a language which, while it may please him, is most insulting to the people of America. That the policy of the United States toward Europe has been "ignoble and cowardly" since the war is as far from the mark as the statement that the Versailles treaty settled Europe's war questions.

We come home from the war, brought back the troops, asked no loot of defeated nations, and went about our business. With an impractical idealism Mr. Wilson, our representative in the peace negotiations, linked the league of nations with the Versailles treaty and made a hopeless and impossible peace. We have made one peaceable spot in all the world, our own United States. We have been trying, as near as human frailty will permit and attention to administration here at home, to straighten out tangles, pay our debts, establish orderly existence, and have succeeded far better than anticipations by the Wilson administration ever hoped.

"Ignoble and cowardly," sounds like the expressions in dark and sad days when the Lusitania was sunk, and Mr. Wilson said we were "too proud to fight," when all the attention of Mr. Wilson was being given chiefly to his reputation that "he kept us out of war." "Ignoble and cowardly" at this time are no more weighty than the phrase making of the days when a chief of staff went to sleep at a cabinet meeting.

Had we published the desires of Mr. Wilson we would have held the mandate for Armenia and in that field on which the Greek army of 300,000 men was lost; we would have erected more crosses to an army required to fight the restored Turks. If it is "ignoble and cowardly" to mind our own business, follow in the footsteps of Washington and the principles of Thomas Jefferson and not chase the hectic ideals of Woodrow Wilson, then we have been both cowardly and ignoble.

To the peevish and querulous scoldings of a sick man we may give a passing pity. When the utterances are taken as the words of a near-divinity we reserve the right of resentment.

One cannot go far astray when he agrees with Fridtjof Nansen that Greece needs aid. Of all the European nations Greece has been abandoned to her own ends. No one has paid any attention to her except and save when Italy, with a lack

Mailable and Unmailable Matter

By FREDERICK J. HASKIN.

Washington.—Millions of dollars, houses, automobiles, pianos, victrolas, jewelry, radio sets, washing machines, and countless other treasures all in the hands of lawful owners who are actually doing to give them away. It is not to be done! At least it can not be done through the United States mails if those so fortunate as to receive the gifts are to be selected by any plan involving lot or chance.

Every day some indignant business man voices in no uncertain terms his opinion of a postal law that forbids his firm's disposing of its own property as it sees fit. After much deliberation the Blank & Blank company decides it is necessary to stimulate interest in their product by a vigorous advertising campaign. To this end the general manager persuades the board of directors to permit him to announce a great prize distribution scheme. Something for nothing—always popular. Just drop into Blank & Blank's and see their new stock and you will be presented with a ticket entitling you to a chance on a beautiful new automobile. A newspaper and mail advertising campaign is started to attract the folks in the neighboring territory.

And then the Post Office department steps in and says you must advertise lottery schemes through the mails. The bewildered general manager for Blank & Blank is stunned. Can not one give away one's own property if one wishes, any way one wishes? Possibly no, one can not; if any elements of lot or chance enter into the distribution of the gifts, and the United States mails are to be used in promoting the scheme.

Whereupon the g. m. makes loud and unfavorable comparison between the freedom enjoyed in the United States and in Russia, and departs in a touring car, leaving to the jeers of the board of directors—who were unwilling to give anything away anyway.

Years ago Louisiana was famous throughout the country for its great lotteries in which prizes amounting to hundreds of thousands of dollars were distributed annually to lucky ticket holders. The evil resulting from gambling, even in its best regulated form, the state lottery, soon was recognized, and congress passed laws prohibiting the sale of lottery tickets in the United States. The Post Office department does not permit letters containing any kind of "offering prizes" to be sent to our country, but returns them to sender, thus saving citizens millions of dollars that might otherwise be dissipated in gambling.

Some of the plans worked out by advertising experts are unique and interesting. In one instance an automobile manufacturer offered one of his cars to the person who could name the exact point to which it would travel on Broadway with one gallon of gas in the tank. He claimed that this was essentially a matter of skill. So many guesses were entered that the manufacturer was forced to alter the conditions of the contest. He offered a prize to the person who could name the exact point to which it would travel on Broadway with one gallon of gas in the tank. He claimed that this was essentially a matter of skill. So many guesses were entered that the manufacturer was forced to alter the conditions of the contest.

Another scheme even more ingenious in that it was calculated to concentrate the attention of the public on a product for a long period of time, was that of a furniture dealer. With each purchase of a piece of furniture he presented a printed clock face the hands of which indicated certain hours and minutes. Each of these dials showed a different time. In the window of his store was a clock and a photograph. Whoever saw the clock stop when it had run down and presented at the store a dial with the hands indicating the hour nearest to that registered on the clock, was entitled to the photograph.

The dial of the clock to run for a long period of time without stopping was thus displayed, and the daily visits of those interested enabled the merchant to display his other wares to advantage. Obviously the time at which the clock would stop and the possession of the corresponding clock face were entirely matters of chance. It was, therefore, necessary to bar the scheme from the mails.

Cigar stores not infrequently fill their windows with loose cigarettes and invite the passerby to guess the number in the pile, offering a prize to the most nearly correct estimate. They may not use the mails to advertise such schemes. On the other hand, contests actually requiring skill on the part of the contestants are admissible. In such cases (being contestants must each be awarded the full amount of the prize for which they are tied. A clever sales plan which attracted much attention throughout the country during recent years was that of a prize for which was offered finding the greatest number of objects in a certain picture, the names of which were listed in a specified letter. At first conducted conscientiously, this project later fell into the hands of persons interested only in mauling the public, and many of the objects represented in the drawings were so indistinct as to reduce the contestant to guessing what they might be. These competitions, so-called, consequently fell under the ban of the postal laws.

Nation-wide advertising campaigns occasionally must be abandoned because they contain features conflicting with the postal lottery statutes. Huge sums have been wasted in fees paid publicity experts for plans that could not be carried out without subjecting the advertiser to the penalties of the law. In most instances, the stumbling block is what the lawyers refer to as "consideration." The constituent elements of a lottery, they say, are three: consideration, chance, and prize. A prize is a prize to anyone's mind, but chance is anything not absolutely dependent upon skill, but consideration is the most subtle of the trio. When money is paid for a lottery ticket, there is what is known as cash consideration. But the term is not confined to money, nor to anything tangible. Merely doing or refraining from a particular act in order to become entitled to a ticket or a chance to win a prize is also a consideration.

To persons unfamiliar with the projects of the corrupt and dishonest, the postal lottery law might appear a hardship. In reality it is a bulwark against the assaults on the pocketbooks of the public. On the other hand the restriction actually placed on legitimate business development is in the last analysis negligible and may be overcome by eliminating the elements objectionable under the law.

of justice which was determined by greed and desire for more power, placed an enormous tribute upon her, fired into an orphan asylum and was left unpublished. There, however at Athens, we stop traveling with Nansen. He says the league of nations is the hope for both Germany and Greece. But in the very hour when the League of Nations could have done something for Greece, it was bluffed by Italy, shifted its responsibility and became, by this one act, the laughing stock of the world with the sole exception of some of its blind devotees. If Greece is to be aided in getting back to a normal state it must be through some agency other than the impotent league.

THE BOY WHO SHOULDN'T GO TO COLLEGE

There are some things above an education. There are some things exceeding grace and knowledge. Courage is written by self-abnegation. Some boys there are who should not go to college.

I write this down just as a young boy said it. And for the lesson taught me give him credit.

"Not going to college?" "No," he answered sadly. "I'd hoped to go, but now the dream is ended."

I'm going to work—my mother needs me badly. College, I guess, for me it was not intended. I'll educate myself some way or other.

But dad is gone, and I must help my mother. "I could not read a book and be contented. Could not stay four long years in my dream pursuing."

And know the money for the room? I rented. Might ease the heavy task which she was doing.

I have no right to seek for wisdom's beauty. And reach for knowledge at the cost of duty.

"I'll go to work and smile to keep her merry. I'll stand between her and the world's privation. She shall not suffer pangs unnecessary. That some day I may boast an education. My mother needs me more than I need knowledge."

I am one boy who should not go to college!" (Copyright, 1923, by Edgar A. Guest)

HOW A MERE EDITOR SIZES IT UP
"What's the matter with America these days?"

Too many diamonds, not enough alarm clocks. Too many silk shirts, not enough blue flannel ones.

Too many pointed toes and not enough square toed ones. Too many serge suits and not enough overalls.

Too much décollete and not enough aprons. Too many consumers and not enough producers.

Too much envy of the results of hard work and too little desire to emulate it. Too many desiring short cuts to wealth and too few willing to pay the price.

A good handy, harmless line is preferable to some friendly sink who tells you the "truth about yourself" every time you see him.

A man doesn't have to have a million dollars to live comfortably these days. He can do it if he has only $999,999.99.

Who's Who Today

JUDGE-ELECT MARY M. BARTELMLE.

Because she was offered to fill a vacancy on the circuit bench in Illinois Mary M. Bartelmle will begin her duties on the Chicago bench in the near future instead of waiting until the new year.

Miss Bartelmle becomes the first woman in Illinois to hold such an important judgeship.

The honor comes to Miss Bartelmle after 25 years of service for the public. She was born of Alsatian parents, on a farm which has since given place to a modern dwelling in Chicago.

After being graduated from the grammar and high schools, Illinois' first woman judge began to teach school. "I had taught just a few years," Miss Bartelmle recalled, "when my mother died."

I always liked chemistry and was attracted to that or to the study of medicine. I went to a woman physician and she advised me to talk to a woman lawyer before I made my choice. I went to Mrs. Myra Blackwell, editor of a law paper. One visit to her and I was determined to take up the study of law."

Having been graduated from Northwestern university law school, Miss Bartelmle at once began practice. In 1907 she was appointed public guardian of an office she held for 20 years. In 1913 she was assigned to the juvenile court to hear girls' cases.

Personal Health Service

THE POOR FOLKS

What are those things which people usually call pores and which so often appear enlarged, especially about the sides of the nose or over the cheeks?

They are the orifices of the ducts or excretory tubes of the sebaceous and sweat glands. The sebaceous (oil) discharges their contents into the ducts through a common opening.

In that same opening, as a rule, on skin covered with hair or down, as the skin on the whole body excepting the sole and the palms is the shaft of the hair. The sebum (oil) and the sweat are poured into the well of the hair shaft; they work out of the hair shaft out upon the surface of the skin.

These openings from which the sweat, the sebum and the hair exude are called pores. The pores are not pores, since they do not open nor close under the influence of varying conditions of temperature or bodily activity. No one with a rudimentary knowledge of anatomy or physiology can for a moment entertain the absurd notion of "taking cold" because somebody carelessly neglected to close his pores before going out in the football game. Nobody has ever been able to prove that anything—water, food or medicine—is absorbed through the pores of the skin.

Various medicinal substances are administered, and effectively, by application to the unbroken skin, but in such cases, as in the case of the skin, the observation is, so far as scientific observation is concerned, that the absorbed, is breathed in through the lungs, being volatilized by the warmth of the body and inhaled. Few good substances, any, can be inhaled—not considering soap.

The orifices or openings of the ducts appear and really are dilated or enlarged when the sebum accumulates; this state of condition is known to physicians as seborrhea, an excessive oiliness of the skin. Seborrhea is commonly associated with blackheads (comedones) and pimples.

In addition to the dilated or enlarged openings of the ducts, in marked cases the actual greasiness of the skin in seborrhea the skin has a waxy texture (due to the relaxed or flaccid condition of the skin) and complexion is muddy or pasty looking. The skin is difficult to keep clean because the oil holds much of the dust and grime which would not adhere to a normal skin. In some cases there are areas of scaldiness, patches of ered with fine glossy scales; these are called seborrheic dermatitis. The high polish of some dentured combs is attributable to seborrhea. Seborrhea of the scalp in persons blessed with a little hair amounts to dandruff. Some persons have seborrhea about the trunk, patches of seborrheic dermatitis, perhaps, on the chest or the back.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.
Mrs. Stanley Returns.
Some people say that swimming makes you weak; others think it makes you physically and mentally perfect from swimming every day? I mean for a young girl. Does it in any way impair a woman's natural feminine charms? Does it tend to make a woman less womanly or tender her feet all for motherhood?

Answer—No; on the contrary, it is one of the finest daily exercises a girl or woman can take to improve her health and appearance and make her better fit for motherhood.

Is there any way to test for sugar at home? I hate to pay $2 every time the test is made. I am not too fond of sweets or much starch, because I have diabetes, and as I've had it for three years ago, I must not take fruit.

Answer—You can make a qualitative test for glucose (sugar)—determine whether it is present—but it is not a quantitative test. Determining how much is present. Benedict's solution is commonly used by diabetic patients generally, and when they are under the modern treatment of the disease, it is also used, though it is probably not so satisfactory. Benedict's solution consists of: Sodium carbonate.....17.5 grams Sodium citrate.....17.5 grams Sodium sulphate.....17.5 grams Distilled water.....to make 1,000 c.c. (Benedict's solution is a blue color in any quantity without requiring the formula.) For the test, place urine in the test tube to the depth of an inch or two, and add eight drops of Benedict's solution; boil for two minutes, all color will be gone. Sugar is present the solution remains clear or merely becomes turbid.

Is the eating of too much sweets the cause of sugar diabetes? (Miss K. M.)

Answer—Overeating is a common cause of diabetes; probably people eat too much abuse the carbohydrate foods which we eat. The carbohydrates include the starches of vegetables and cereals as well as the sugars of sweets.

During today's direction of the stars the need will be for more fortunate than the young and their counsel should be sought.

Financial matters should be handled with the most conservative foresight and speculation is likely to be most unfortunate.

There is to be much extravagance and reckless spending in the United States at this time. It is not a good time to speculate, but this will be one of the signs that teach wisdom to those who have eyes to see.

The signing of leases when Saturn is friendly should be lucky, but in other matters it is well to delay action until a more favorable planetary direction prevails.

Labor should benefit from this rule which makes for the accession of needed benefits.

Travel on land or sea may not be fortunate today, for there is a sign indicating accidents and delays.

All the signs appear to presage some sort of flurry or trouble over oil and oil properties. New discoveries of oil will be made, but speculation will be unfortunate.

Men who are agents of the people in either high or humble offices may expect the most severe criticism.

The public will seem concentrated to all who serve it in governmental capacities and this spirit will extend to Washington, D. C., if the seers are to be believed.

Persons whose birthdate it is probably will have an active year that is less profitable than usual. Losses may be sustained but business affairs may be safeguarded. Care in the choice of friends should be exercised.

Children born on this day may meet with many changes in the course of their lives. These subjects of sear should usually work hard and gain success after much labor. They have determined traits of character and there is nothing half way about them.

"There's a fellow ready to aid me in my work, or to hinder according to his discretion," I inwardly commented. But if so, and if he followed us and noted our several preparations before taking the train, he did it for an expert, for I do not remember running upon him again.

The chief part which I took in these preparations was the sending of two telegrams, one to the office of the Inspector, and one to the office of the Mayor. The former was a notification of absence; the latter, a simple announcement that I was returning to C— and on what train to expect me. No word about the key, possibly he already knew as much about it as I did.

Edgar continued to surprise me. On our arrival he showed gratification rather than displeasure at encountering the Inspector at the station.

"Here's luck," he cheerfully exclaimed. "This will save me a stop at Headquarters. I hear that my cousin has found a key, presumably the one for which we have all been searching. Quenton and myself are here to find out if it is a key-hole to fit it. Any objections, Inspector?"

His old manner, but a little over-emphasized, I looked to see if the Inspector noticed this, but he was a man so quiet in his ways that it would take one as astute as himself to read anything from his looks.

"That's already been tried. We've been all the morning at it. But if you have any new ideas on the subject I am willing to accompany you back to the house."

The astonishment this caused me was hard to conceal. How could they have made the same mistake when the key necessary for it was at that very moment in Edgar's pocket? But I remembered the last word he had said, "if you love me—leaving the train if you love me—"

"If you love Orpha, allow me to run this business in my own way," he had said. "I will be sure to test his way and see if it is a good one."

"I don't know as I have any new ideas," I thought. "I fear I exhausted all my ideas, new and old, before I went to New York. However, if you—" and here he drew the Inspector aside and had a few earnest words with him, while I stood by in a daze.

The end of it all was that we went one way and the Inspector another, but that Edgar and myself, and only one look given that conveyed any message and that was to me. It came from the Inspector and conveyed to me the meaning, whether of praise or censure, that he was leaving this matter in my hands.

And Edgar thought it was in his hand. One incident more and I will take you with me to Quenton Court. As we, that is, Edgar and myself, turned to go down the street, he remarked in a natural but perfectly casual manner:

"Orpha has the key."

As the Inspector was just behind us on his way to the curb, I perceived that this sentence was meant for him rather than for me and let it pass till we were well out of hearing, when I asked somewhat curtly:

"What do you mean by that?"

"What do you mean by that?"

TODAY'S RECIPES

Cooked Cereal—A cupful of bran added to the cooked breakfast cereal just before serving adds a nutty flavor which gives the needed "roughage" also.

Crisp Bacon—Bacon must be watched carefully while cooking whether it is broiled or fried. It must be browned evenly and not scorched. If you are using the oven, as many do, for the making of toast on the broiler, an easy plan is to put the frying pan with the bacon in the oven. It must be watched even then, but the heat being evenly distributed over the surface of the frying pan insures an even browning.

Sponge Cake—One and one-half cups sugar, three eggs, one-half cup cold water, two tablespoons cream of tartar, two cups flour, one teaspoon soda, one egg white, one cup milk, one cup sugar, mix and sift together flour, soda and cream tartar and add oil, cold water, Beat whites of eggs until stiff and add to mixture. Flavor. Bake over a flame below medium.

SUGGESTIONS

Envelopes for Patterns—Anyone who uses paper patterns finds that the envelopes they come in are never large enough after the pattern has been used. Making a new envelope to put in the pattern is necessary to pin or tie them together, and that, being made of thin paper, they soon become torn and their contents scattered. Buy large Manila envelopes with brass clasps to keep patterns in and you will have no trouble. Cut the directions and diagrams from the original envelopes and paste them on the new envelopes. These Manila envelopes can, of course, be used over and over, and will keep the patterns in perfect condition.

Improved Cleaning Table—If you are one of those "homeless" roomers and your room does not boast of a table on which you can spread out and cut a waist pattern, open the top drawers of your dresser, procure a board to lay across it so as to make a level extension, with the dresser top, and you have improvised a temporary table large enough for sewing and writing purposes.

When Cleaning Windows—In cleaning windows without using water, first wipe them with a dry duster, then so over with a soft rag dipped in kerosene, and finally polish with tissue paper or leather. Windows cleaned in this way will not only look unusually bright, but will keep clean much longer than washed ones. Mirrors can be cleaned in the same way.

Curtain Haul—When making your own curtains, if you will cut off the edges on both sides, then hem, they will hang much straighter and will not draw where they are stitched, as they are apt to do if the selvage is left.

Is Your Work Hard On Your Kidneys?

Is your work wearing you out? Are you fatigued with throbbing backache—feel tired, weak and discouraged? Then look to your kidneys. Many occupational troubles, such as backache, headache, dizziness and rheumatic pains are the natural result. You suffer annoying bladder irregularities, feel nervous, irritable and worn out. Don't wait! Use Doan's Kidney Pills. Workers everywhere recommend Doan's. They should help you, too. Ask your neighbor!

J. W. McCue, stationary engineer, 523 Lincoln St., says: "My back ached for three weeks and my kidneys acted too frequently. I had a dreadful nervous feeling, so I decided to try Doan's Kidney Pills. I got a couple of boxes at Sherer's Drug Store and when I had finished taking them, I was as well as ever."

YOUR BABY and MINE

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

Mrs. Eldred is happy to advise all mothers about the care of their children, and to give them the best of advice which does not belong in the field of the doctor.

BY MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED
Mrs. B. B. writes:
Kindly advise me the name of the book and where it can be purchased, that tells how to take care of oneself during pregnancy?

Answer:
Write to the Children's Bureau Department of Labor, Washington, D. C., and ask for the booklet "Prenatal Care." Enclose five cents in stamps for payment of it.

A better You'll Enjoy Reading
From Mrs. B. B. writes:
Under the heading "Your Baby and Mine," I see that you say to tell a child, "No" is lazy. Just the other day my boy of 5 years wanted a piece of cake on a rainy day. Don't you think we mothers are in way responsible for our children's health. I like to see the children enjoy themselves, and am willing to stand the noise and dirt, but what can one do with a boy who wants to be out with the other boys continually, either in the summer or winter, or taking an old tin can with a candle in it at night, because then you can see the light so far away? I give my child all the pleasures possible in his life. Are there any books you could refer me to?

Answer:
This is a boy after my own heart. His imagination is all it should be and he must be healthy or he wouldn't enjoy being out in all kinds of weather. Of course mothers have to use judgment, but you give the child all the pleasures you possibly can he is bound to be reasonable when you exercise a little restriction over him. You see it is the mother who must always say "no" on general principles, whom I call lazy. I am sending you the rest of the information by mail.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl in my early teens. There is a boy who comes to see me and he goes with almost every girl he sees. He is also easy to anger. He wants me to take anything from him, and he does not want to take anything from me. Therefore he goes away and stays three or four weeks at a time. Then he comes back and receives my company just the same. What shall I do?

Answer:
The poorest girl can be well dressed, and cut on correct lines, are made in such quantities by the wholesale manufacturers that it is cheaper and better to purchase them in retail shops.

Money must be saved, the straight, simple, casual dresses that we are still wearing can be made up at home, but the tailored suit never should be.

Worried—it is not necessary that you should lose the wave in your hair if you treat it for this unnatural dryness. Trim the split ends about every three weeks, massage the scalp every day to improve the circulation, as that will mean a healthier condition and enough oil from the skin to keep the hair from breaking. A tonic included with the massage several times a week will be helpful.

At 22, five feet three inches in height, your weight should be not more than 125 pounds. If you reduce to that amount your bust will not be too large.

While awaiting her turn at the Palace, Tessie, of Eddie and Tessie, novelty song and dance artists, picked up an evening paper, reports Judge Jess's eyes fell on the item which, under a glaring headline, told of a court decision awarding damages of $20,000 to a chorus girl for a single kiss. Drawing a pencil, she began figuring furiously.

"What now?" her father remarked. When he finished the newspaper story.

Mothers, don't let colds get under your skin. Cold is the worst enemy a mother has. It is a pure, white ointment, made with oil of mustard. It draws out congestion, relieves soreness, even relieves the work of the good old-fashioned mustard plaster in a gentler way, without the blister.

Keep a jar handy for all emergencies. It may prevent pneumonia. To Mothers: Mustard is now made in milder form for babies and small children. Ask for Children's Mustard.

Children clustered in the tenement yard, Everybody's declares, "He dealt with Mrs. McAfferty, and finally asked: 'And how many children have you, Mrs. McAfferty?'"

"Now, lemme see," answered she, wiping her hands, "there's Tommy, Harry, Dick, Lizzie, and then Joe. Yeh, we have Jimmy, Minnie, and a couple more, but I can't give me the number!" she said, impatiently.

"Oh, we don't have number them," replied Mrs. McAfferty indignantly. "We ain't run out of names yet."

BLAINE ASSAILS LENDROT ON TAXES

Contradicts Statements of Senator; Federal Methods Criticized.

[By Associated Press]
Washington — Charges that federal taxes have been greatly reduced and state taxes increased during the past four years were contradicted by Governor John J. Blaine in an address here last night. He directed many of his remarks against statements credited to Senator Lendrot of Wisconsin.

"I note that there has been much said recently about the per capita tax of state government and the alleged reduction of federal government expenditures," Governor Blaine said. "Permit me to say that during the fiscal biennium ending June 30 this year, the total amount of taxes, including the tax on real estate, inheritance, incomes, railways, street railways, sleeping cars, night lines, express, telegraph and all other forms of taxation, that went to the support of the state government, amounted to $24,457,235 or $12.225.644 for each year.

"This Federal Tax
Senator Lendrot would have you believe that under this administration the per capita tax in Wisconsin, that is, all taxes of every nature for the state government, if they had been paid on the basis of the per capita, would have been $14.54. The fact is that the total cost of state government from all sources of taxation is $4.52.

"It is said federal taxes have been reduced, but reduced for the benefit of whom? The great body of the American citizens, the workers, the farmers, the professional men, the small business men? No, reduction in federal taxes has been made to the benefit of individuals all the way from one to 50 per cent, but there have only 50 such taxpayers in Wisconsin. As to the other 2,500,000 people in Wisconsin, no reduction for them. Their taxes were increased, and the increase was evenly done.

"Indirect Taxes
"It is a favored plan of the national government to raise revenue by indirect taxes, such as tariff, stamp and sales taxes, whereby the tax is included in the cost of the article consumed. By this method the consumer who pays the tax may overlook the fact that he pays a tax on the article he buys. This is the plainest tax, because the taxpayer does not raise a howl when he pays it. He doesn't appreciate it at the time that he pays the tax. It is like painless tooth extraction. The nerve is deadened but the patient loses his tooth just the same. The taxpayer has his nerve deadened but he is made poorer by just the increased cost of the article by reason of the tax. The profiteers are mostly in favor of the painless tax, whereby the taxes they ought to pay may be passed on to the poor without the angry dissent of the victims.

Assaults Gasoline Tax
"This was the same scheme back of the gasoline tax—a tax of 2 per cent, a gallon on gasoline, which meant a tax ranging from 10 to 15 per cent of the value of the product that was proposed to be imposed upon the consumers of gasoline. Those who traveled the 70,000 miles of our highways were called upon to pay a tax ranging all the way from 10 to 15 per cent of the value of the product, and moreover, the proposition went so far that the gasoline used on 60,000 miles of our county and rural highways, 7 per cent of that tax was to go on 10,000 miles of state highway, and only 25 per cent of each tax on the 50,000 miles of county and rural highways.

"It won't be long until the same influences will be proposing to further reduce the income taxes on those best able to pay, and place a consumption tax, a sales tax, or an additional tariff tax, such as the sugar tax, upon the shows that you buy your clothing, and what a simple matter it would be to tax cotton and gingham 2 cents a yard, and then reduce the income tax on the profiteers.

Keeping Expenses Down
The Governor declared the state administration is keeping expenses well within receipts which, he said, is "something the federal government has not been doing." He said that nearly $1,800,000 has been collected for local treasuries during the past two years in delinquent taxes. With such savings as have been made he stated, the building program for state institutions has been carried on.

"Any increase in state expenditures has represented expenditures for education and good roads," Governor Blaine said, "while the enormously increased federal expenditures represent principally payments for past wars and preparation for future wars."

WRIGLEY BEATEN IN DAMAGE SUIT

Judgment of $3,718,000 Is Given Rival Concern in Patent Infringement.

Chicago—Damages amounting to $3,718,000 must be paid by the Wm. Wrigley Jr. company, chewing gum makers to the L. P. Larson & Co. company, for infringement on a copyrighted gum package, according to an order of Charles E. Merriam, federal master in chancery. Litigation has been in progress five years.

The order decided the Wrigley company owed the rival concern $230,000 and interest at 6 per cent since Nov. 12, 1918. The gum wrapper involved was known as "double mint."

In 1915, the Wrigley company sued the Larson company for alleged infringement on a Wrigley "double mint" wrapper. The latter company contended the doublemint wrapper was used prior to the time the Wrigley company used it.
